American Association for the Study of Liver Disease
AASLD 2024 The Liver Meeting
Friday, November 15th - Tuesday, November 19th, 2024
Anticipated Attendance: 9,000

Group Description

The American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases (AASLD), founded in 1950, is the leading organization for professionals dedicated to the study, prevention, and treatment of liver diseases. With over 7,000 members, including physicians, scientists, and healthcare professionals, AASLD aims to advance hepatology and promote better liver health and patient care. Key activities include "The Liver Meeting," an annual event showcasing the latest research and innovations, and the development of practice guidelines by expert panels to enhance diagnostic and therapeutic strategies in liver care.

Attendee Profile

Attendees include hepatologists, gastroenterologists, researchers, medical students, and healthcare professionals from various fields related to liver health.
