American Society of Hematology
66th Annual ASH Meeting & Exposition
Saturday, December 7th – Tuesday, December 10th, 2024
Anticipated Attendance: 30,000

Group Description

The American Society of Hematology (ASH), founded in 1958, is the largest professional organization dedicated to the study and treatment of blood disorders, serving both clinicians and scientists. ASH's mission focuses on advancing the understanding, diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of blood, bone marrow, and immunologic disorders through initiatives like organizing scientific meetings, publishing journals such as "Blood" and "The Hematologist," providing educational resources, advocating for supportive policies, and fostering collaboration among researchers, clinicians, and patient advocates. Overall, ASH is essential for promoting scientific discovery, improving patient care, and advancing hematology through education, research, advocacy, and collaboration.

Attendee Profile

The American Society of Hematology (ASH) conference attracts a diverse range of attendees, including hematologists, researchers, nurses, nurse practitioners, pharmacists, medical students, and residents. Industry representatives from pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies also participate, along with patient advocates who represent individuals with blood disorders. This mix of professionals fosters collaboration and knowledge sharing in the field of hematology.
