HEART RHYTHM SOCIETY
HRS 2025

Thursday, April 24th – Sunday, April 27th, 2025
Anticipated Attendance: 11,500

Group Description

The Heart Rhythm Society (HRS) is a professional society dedicated to the study, diagnosis, and treatment of heart rhythm disorders, also known as arrhythmias. Established in 1979, HRS serves as a global leader in the field of cardiac electrophysiology, bringing together healthcare professionals, researchers, and industry partners to advance the understanding and management of heart rhythm disorders. HRS's mission includes promoting education, research, and clinical practice in cardiac electrophysiology to improve patient care and outcomes. The HR society organizes scientific meetings, conferences, and educational events, publishes scientific journals such as Heart Rhythm and the Journal of Innovations in Cardiac Rhythm Management, and provides guidelines and resources for healthcare professionals involved in the diagnosis and treatment of heart rhythm disorders. Through its activities, HRS aims to foster collaboration, innovation, and excellence in the field of cardiac electrophysiology, ultimately leading to better prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of arrhythmias and related conditions, and enhancing the quality of life for patients with heart rhythm disorders.

Attendee Profile

The Heart Rhythm Society (HRS) is attended by a diverse group of professionals specializing in electrophysiology and cardiac arrhythmia care. Participants include electrophysiologists, cardiologists, fellows, and residents focused on heart rhythm disorders, as well as nurses and allied health professionals working in cardiac care and electrophysiology labs. Scientists and researchers attend to explore innovations in heart rhythm treatments, while medical device companies and industry professionals showcase the latest technologies in pacemakers, defibrillators, and ablation devices. Additionally, hospital administrators and healthcare executives participate to stay informed on advancements in cardiac technology and policy updates.
